Extract from a letter from Jerusalem:

We started early to ascend Mt Olivet, to behold the sun gild the minarets and towers of the devoted city, from the place where memory stirred by a thousand recollections, should exalt the mind as well as the eye to the inspiration of the scene. Well is the voyager repaid for long travels, horrid roads, antediluvian cookery, squalid companionship and the importunities of begging, thieving Arabs. Well would it have repaid you, oh! man of commerce and the crucible! and well might you have been reminded of your own city, for here painted on a board nailed against one of the ancient olive trees, under which the sacred martyrs toiled for the sins of the world, eighteen hundred years ago, were these familiar figures, S T—1860—X. We do not know who did it, but no doubt some poor invalid traveler, cured by the Plantation Bitters, wished to advertise their virtues in a place from whence all knowledge flows.

The following brief and pointed articles are taken from the Temperance Era:

King Cotton once ruled this nation, it was said. Now, King Whisky holds the people with a grip of iron, and party politicians call the temperance question "a side issue." So it will ever be while we talk one way and vote in the opposite direction, or, to say the least, ignore our principles at the ballot box.

If the fact that cities do not execute the laws against dram shops is a sufficient reason for licensing them, then the fact that cities do not execute the laws against brothels is a good reason for licensing them.

The license system would make the the state the partner with the rumsellers, in the profits acquired by a criminal business. Adopting it, the state virtually sanctions all the injury and destruction caused by the traffic. The legislators say to the whisky vender; "You may make all the drunkards, and do all the mischief you please—only give me a due share of the profits

A poor woman said sorrowfully, "Our grocery bill every month for my husband, myself, and three children is less than the beer bill of my husband." Think of it. A man spending more every month for dirty lager beer than is required for the grocery bill of the whole family! Should a man throw, every month, so much money into the Lake, he would be doing wrong; but not so great a wrong as to poison his own blood and even his health, as well as rob his wife of the comforts of life.

Let it be borne in mind that the whiskyites and beerists have forced this issue upon the people. Their disturbing the harmony of the party has not been rebuked. Ponder well over this resolution adopted by the Beer Brewers' Congress, in Buffalo, last June:

"That we use all honorable means to deprive political and Puritanical temperance men of the power they have so long exercised in the councils of political parties in this country, and that we will support no candidate for any office who is identified with this narrow minded element."

What great love certain men profess for the temperance cause, just at the time when radical men of the movement propose to do something. "Oh don't drag this question into politics, you'll hurt the cause!" After uttering this sort of advice gratis, they turn around the corner, find their way into a saloon, and mildly call for a glass of—native wine, of course, pure juice of the grape, all to advance the temperance reformation.

When a laboring man toils six days, does he think what a confounded idiot he is to gamble and guzzle the proceeds of his week's labor on Sunday? Is he proud of his contribution to the horses, diabonds, dinners and dimi-monde of sports and gin sellers?

Show us a case where the mothers, wives and daughters of a community have petitioned for grog-shops. On the contrary, the vast majority of them, in all stations of life, would gladly see the system swept out of existence. Have they any rights we are bound to respect?

The revenue which the government obtains from its license to the manufacturers and dealers in alcoholic beverages, is but a mere trifle compared to the vast amount of breadstuffs that are sacrificed to feed distilleries, and which greatly increase the price of food, and retard the true prosperity of the country.

There are more ale, wine and cider drunkards in our land to-day than all the brandy, rum, whisky and gin drunkards combined. Count up in your own towns cases you know and see if we are not correct.

If you have any doubt as to the course for you to pursue in this matter, the following question may settle it: If a prohibitory law is wrong, why is every rumseller in the country arrayed against it?

To those who affect to regard the movement for temperance political action as insignificant, we would respectfully present the injunction, which experience has demonstrated so often true, not to ""despise the day of small things!"

The following love letter was picked up in Kokomo, Indiana; 'Oh. My deerest Maley, i will try to auser yure deer letter. O how my throbbin hart Does ake to Embrace you onse more. O you darlin Rosy Bud wont you marry me. Theer the eko ancer i will. Dont let that ugly thing take you a buggy Ridin agin. O how I felt the first time we tutched our lipps tugether. O how my hole frame did quvier but i must stop or i will go crazy O how we will divide the sorros and and joys and cumforts of life.—Ancer rite of from your George.'

Presidential Declaration.

Being satisfied from observation and experience, as well as medical testimony, that ardent spirits, as a drink is not only needless, but hurtful, and that the entire disuse of it would tend to promote the health, the virtue and the happiness of the community, we hereby express our conviction, that should the citizens of the United States and especially the young men, discontinue entirely the use of it, they would not only promote their personal benefit, but the good of our country and the world.

SCHNECTADY, N. Y., March 17, 1860.

J. N. STEARNS, ESQ., Secretary, &c. New York

DEAR SIR:—In 1836 I visited Presidents Madison, Adams and Jackson, who signed the above. The document is on parchment, and has been presented to each succeeding president and cheerfully signed, with the exception of President Harrison—he died before it was sent on. He however, before he died, abandoned an interest in a distillery, to indicate his testimony, and would doubtless have signed the declaration if it had been presented to him. The early signatures were obtained before total abstinence was fully established, as the only platform on which the reform could rest with hope, as it was found beyond cavil, that alcohol was the same fatal poison when used as a drink in fermented as in distilled.

The presidential declaration was handed to our present chief magistrate a day or two after his inauguration, which he promptly signed, making thirteen signers.

EDWARD C. DELAVAN.

The Drunkard's Child.

The event the anticipation of which had kept Brownville in commotion for a fortnight, had transpired. The grand wedding was past, and John Merrinew and Harriet Wilber were man and wife.

Harriet had known John for years, and she felt that she had every reason to be proud of her husband. But John was the victim of a degrading vice, of which Harriet had received not the slightest intimation. He loved to "tarry long at the wine." None but his boon companions knew how fast and how completely he was becoming a slave to strong drink. But Harriet was made acquainted with her husband's weakness all too soon. The honeymoon had scarcely waned ere he was brought home intoxicated to unconsciousness. The terrible truth broke upon Harriet's trusting heart like an avalanche upon a mountain hamlet, sudden, dreadful and overwhelming. All through that long woeful night she wept by her husband's couch, and when he opened his bloodshot eyes in partial consciousness, she was bending over him in piteous prayer for his salvation from a drunkard's fate. She pleaded with him, and he promised never again to touch ought that would intoxicate. But his promise was not kept. Time and again he came reeling home with bitter curses for the sweet young wife whose earthly sun of happiness seemed set forever.

Day after day he sank lower until but the wreck of his early manhood remained.

Years passed thus. John neglected his business, and his property was melting away.

They had no family and for this Harriet felt truly thankful. She could bear her burden alone, knowing that by and-by would come a sweet rest to her aching heart. She shrank from the very thought of bringing innocent offspring into the world to have entailed upon them their father's vice—to fill a pauper's or a drunkard's grave.

With John it was different. His house seemed dreary and lonely with no prattling voices to greet him on his return home.

John thought he should be a better man with a childish face by his fireside. That it would have power in its very weakness to call him home when his day's work was done in spite of the attractions of the grog-shop.

And at last he had his wish; a son was given him. John had been sober for weeks when his child was born. He was sober and happy, too, when he went into the darkened chamber to look at his baby face.

It was a pretty, blue-eyed child, and John felt stronger for the right as he gazed into its sweet, innocent face. He had something to work for—to fight the tempter for—and he resolved to do both.

But when he beheld the helpless body of his offspring, his curses were loud and bitter. He cursed the child, his Maker, and cursed his innocent wife.

The child was deformed.

It would never be able to walk, the doctor said.

It would never run to meet him at night, or gambol about in childish joy at his return.

"Better it had never been born than thus," murmured the disappointed father; but the mother gathered it closer to her breast, saying:

"Poor, helpless darling! But there is comfort for me even in my sorrow. For my boy will always stay with his mother. So he will not follow in his father's footstops."

John's downward course was rapid and sure after that; but Harriet's life was made brighter by the patient, loving trust of her darling boy.

Ruby never walked; but when he became stout enough; he learned to wheel himself about in a patent chair.

When his father came home intoxicated, his bloated face and vengeful curses making him a terror to every one else, Ruby would wheel his little chair up to him, and, laying his curly head on his trembling knee, look up into his face with a sweet, trustful gaze, and say:

"Ruby's sorry 'cause papa is naughty again. What makes papa get naughty and scold mamma and make her cry? Ruby loves papa. He wants him to be good."

Sometimes John, in looking into the child's pure, thoughtful face, would forget his deformity and snatch him to his heart, but only to put him down again with bitter curses. Then the boy would look up with tearful eyes:

"Ruby can't help it, papa. God made him so. Won't you let Ruby love you, and love him too? Mamma loves him, but Ruby's lonely."

By and by little Ruby grew sick and John was told that he must die. He was sober when he entered the quiet room to look upon his dying child. Ruby was lying in his mother's arms, his eyes were closed as if in peaceful slumber, while a dreamy smile made his waxen face almost angelic in its beauty. John stole softly to his wife's side and watched the wasted features of his child, wondering how he could ever have steeled his heart against such innocence and purity.

The pink lips unclosed, and father and mother bent lower to catch the words of the dying one.

'Ruby is going to the angels. He will walk when he gets there and then papa will love him. Tell him to be good, so he can come and see his Ruby walking with the angels."

"Papa is here. He isn't naughty now. Can Ruby see him?" said his mother, as she tenderly wiped the death damp from his brow.

The transparent lids were slowly raised and Ruby's blue eyes gazed wistfully into his father's face.

"Papa, the angels are calling Ruby, will you come too?"

"Yes, Ruby, my darling, God being my helper," said John, his voice husky with emotion.

"Papa's naughty. He can't come to Ruby and the angels till he's good.

"I will be good, Ruby. I will come."

"Then kiss Ruby, papa, before he goes. He'll carry your kiss to the angels and tell them.

John bent down and kissed the cold lips of his dying boy. It was the first kiss he ever gave him.

The silken eyelashes dropped over the wan checks, the little hands fell limp, and Ruby was with the angels.

They dressed the little body for the grave, and laid it out in the chamber where its first breath of life was given. Thither John repaired, and fastening the door, he knelt before the dead and prayed long and earnestly for grace to enable him to withstand temptation and meet his child in Heaven; and even as he prayed he felt strengthened. It seemed as if the freed spirit of his boy, no longer clothed in deformity, was hovering near him and beckoning him to follow to angel land. And then John Merrinew did what he never done before, thanked Heaven for the gift of that sainted child.

Ruby's work below was done, and he was taken home. On the day on which the lifeless body was consigned to the grave, John signed the temperance pledge and to the day of his death, when he too was called by the angels, that pledge, made in the presence of the living and the dead, was sacredly kept.

In the years of prosperity and happiness which followed, other children were given him who grew up to be all that the heart of their mother could wish.

Ruby's memory was cherished with a feeling bordering on veneration, and every summer the little grave on the hillside was kept blooming with flowers by the hands of his reformed father and happy mother.

A HOSS STABLE.—The Hon Benjamin Tappan, once a senator from Ohio was on the bench, when the Buckeye state was admitted into the union. He was famous in his time for being very ugly, very talented, very crosseyed, crabbed and sarcastic. On one occasion he was holding court in the wilderness, where one log cabin had to be used for court house, tavern and bar room. The stable near by was used pro tem for a jail. The judge had just given some malefactors a very severe sentence, when a rough backwoodsman, who had been practicing at the other bar, exclaimed:—That's right, give um thunder, old gimblet eyes. Who is that? screamed the indignant and irate judge. It's this old hoss, answered the pioneer, giving his breast an approving slap. Mr Sheriff, retorted Tappan, put that old hoss in the stable, and keep him a week on bread and water.

Physicians rarely take medicine; no lawyer goes to law—two hints not unworthy of attention.

A profuse and many times excessively offensive discharge from the nose, with stopping up of the nose at times, impairment of the sense of smell and taste, watering or weak eyes, impaired hearing, irregular appetite, occasional nausea, pressure and pain over the eyes, and at times in the back of the head, occasional chilly sensations, cold feet, and a feeling of lassitude and debility are symptoms which are common to catarrh, yet all of them are not present in every case. Dr Sage's Catarrh Remedy cures catarrh in its worst forms and stages. It is pleasant to use and contains no poisonous or caustic drugs. Sent by mail on receipt of sixty cents. PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY J. FROST & P. V. ELKER.

Massillon, Wednesday, May 5.

Constitutional Amendment—YES.

THE OHIO legislature, after an incubation of four months of the second or third session—for we have not kept tally of its meetings—after hatching out some very small chickens in the shape of laws, adjourned yesterday. Some papers give this body credit for enacting two good and useful laws, one of which authorizes the appointment of a corps of scientific men to make a geological survey of the state, at the head of whom Mr Newbury is placed, and the other to erect a central lunatic asylum.

A WHISKY row took place some days ago at Cannelton, Ind, where several men engaged in a fight with knives. Two were killed on the spot, and three others were so seriously cut up that they are not expected to live. This is nothing new for whisky and its numerous adjutants, yet this same whisky rules our politics, and if a move is made to use temperance as a political question it raises terrible howl among certain classes.

A BIG SUE.—Mr. Dana, editor of the New York Sun, has been publishing terrible stories about J R Young, managing editor of the New York Tribune, charging him with being an immense rascal in various transactions. Mr Russell has sued Dana, placing his damages at $100,000, and the latter has been held to bail in the sum of $10,000 for his appearance to answer in court. Mr Dana parades his charges with great assurance, while Mr Young denies with equal earnestness. For the credit of the press, and especially for that of Mr Young, who is one of the most brilliant and able of the editorial profession, we hope he may prove himself clear of these serious charges. Some of those New York politicians are a very scurvy set of fellows, and we must await further developments to decide whether Mr Dana is about to add another to the already numerous list of the reckless class.

SOME time in the month of June next all the members of the Methodist Episcopal church, both men and women, over the age of 21 years, are to vote on the important question as to whether lay members shall participate in legislating on questions connnected with that large and influential body of Christians. This business has heretofore been in the hands of the ministry—private members having no place in the law making power of the church. The subject has been agitated for years in the annual conferences, for the advocates of the new movement are a power among them, and not only lay members but not a few among the able ministers sympathise with the proposed change. The genius of the times would seem to indicate that such a regulation—if such it may be called—is necessary, for these are days of progress.

The New Indian Policy.

Ever since the formation of our government, troubles of more or less magnitude have been had with the Indians. Indian wars have been waged so often that if we were to say they amount to several scores, it would be within the limits of truth. Now the red man is human, and as proof of this he has shown that he possesses a full share of human frailties. But with all his short-comings the truth will not be distorted when we say that, in nine cases out of ten, if the facts were fully known, he is more sinned against than sinning. Ignorant and revengeful he naturally seeks redress in endeavoring to do mischief to the white man, when he is satisfied that he is suffering from wrongs and encroachments which the latter is continually perpetrating upon him. Whisky and rascality have done more to demoralize these native Americans, since the first settlements of the white colonies in this country, than all the missionary labors have done to elevate, educate and Christianize them in the last three centuries. Is the Indian treacherous? so are those white men who have done him the greatest wrong. Before mistaught by our race many writers say the Indian was confiding, sincere and trustworthy. Is the Indian a drunkard? Who made him so but white men? It is not likely that Columbus, in all his vast discoveries, found a nation or a tribe of drunken Indians. Is the Indian revengeful? He has been an apt learner to acquire this feeling. The truth warrants us in saying that the red man is an imitator of many of our evil practices, while he follows but few of our virtues. Fraud, theft, robbery and wrong committed by Indian agents in cheating them out of their lands, their money which the nation promised to pay, them, and violence on the part of those thus defrauding them, all stimulated by bad whisky, have caused numerous slaughters, wars and other wrongs.

To avoid these troubles president Grant has certainly evinced superior wisdom in inaugurating an entirely new policy in his treatment of the Indians. As far as possible he is trying to remove those drunken, cheating, unprincipled rascals, who have been doing so much mischief, and putting in their places men of a very different class. The Quakers, friends of peace, sobriety, industry, quiety and prosperity, are to take charge of the Indians. If these men carry out their pacific principles in this new relation, their mission will be a blessing and a success. In the settlement of Pennsylvania Wm. Penn had no Indian troubles, and probably he had more dealings with them than any other man in modern times. Ever peaceful toward them they never molested him, He paid them satisfactorily for their lands, and never inspired their hate, or never taught them revenge by firing their brains with liquid poison. Like causes will be followed with like results. If the Quakers of other days humanely and fairly secured the Indians' good will, it can be done again. Let us hope for the best.

Just about these days, if current reports are to be relied on, the great through railroad will be completed, so that passengers can travel by this method from away down east to California, a distance of some thousands of miles. This fact will make an important era in the history of advancement in our country, and proves to the world that Americans are not only capable of governing themselves, but that they can and do achieve some of the greatest improvements of the age. No other part of the world affords continuous lines of railroad extending three thousand miles. This road is but the precursor of competing roads of a like character; for it will pay the projectors and builders fabulous amounts; whatever pays well is to sure meet with rivalry in some shape. It used to take about three months to go to California—now the land of gold can be reached in much less than three weeks.

GRANT is a great innovator. During the war he invaded Mississippi and took Vicksburg and a great many other cities and rebel strong holds by his invading policy, while McClellan was playing strategy and killing off our armies by the thousands. Finally, Grant invaded the sacred soil of Virginia, saying he was going to fight it out on that line if it took all summer. He lived up to his promise, even invading the Jerusalem of rebeldom (Richmond) and took it as successfully as did Titus and Vespasian the Jernsalem of old. Not satisfied yet he has invaded the presidency (by authority of we the people) and now is high chief of the nation. But his invasions still continue. Judge Taney said negroes had no rights white men are bound to respect, but Grant dont say that—he appoints negroes to office, and has placed with the concurrence of the United States senate—several of them in important offices. One of them is postmaster at Columbia the capital of South Carolina. Others have been appointed consuls to different countries. And more yet, if possible, this same Grant has been putting women into office. If all this dont ruin the country what will do it? And he has even innovated so far that he wont use any drunk making material, such as inspired his predecessor so immensely at times. Can't this innovater be stopped?

At a regular meeting of Post 45 G A R, Massillon, April 28, 1869, the following preamble and resoluttons were unanimously adopted

WHEREAS, The Almighty in His infinite wisdom has called from our midst by death, our much esteemed comrade THEODORE A. RICKS, and

WHEREAS, This Post, deeply sensible of the loss we have sustained in being thus deprived of the presence, labor and counsel of our departed comrade, therefore

Resolved, That in the death of our beloved comrade we recognize and submit to the decree of the Divine will, and furthermore

Resolved, That in the future we will cherish the memory of our late comrade, as in the past we have been guided by his earnest, manly and wise counsels, and while we bow to the rulings of Providence, we will yet endeavor to profit by his example as a citizen, soldier and comrade, for we knew him to be loyal, brave and true.

Resolved, That we hereby extend to the sorrowing family of the deceased our earnest sympathy in this their great grief.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be presented to the family of the deceased, and that a copy be presented to the Massillon Independent and Canton Repository and Republican, for publication.

DECORATION DAY.—The 30th day of May, proximo, a day set apart by the Grand Army of the Republic to commemorate the glorious deeds of departed comrades—will be observed throughout the United States in such manner as befits the solemnities of the occasion, and as will testify the undying love of a grateful people for the memory of those who died that the nation might live. * * * * * * * *

As the 30th day of May occurs on the Sabbath, the Posts are at liberty to observe either that day or Saturday, the 29th. By order of

JOHN A. LOGAN,
Commander-in-Chief.

MALICIOUS.—On Sunday evening (25th ult.,) Mr. Tuttle, editor of the Ohio Spiritualist, of Cleveland, received the following notice:

"Editur—Can have two days to live city or quit giting out such a paper your life aint worth 10 cts.

Wilson too."

The Wilson here alluded to is the name of a gentleman now lecturing in favor of spiritualism at Cleveland. On Tuesday night following somebody made their way into the office at which the Ohio Spiritualist was printed, broke up the press, pied all the type, thus doing all the mischief that could be done in this way. Some ignorant zealots have been prompted to this act by those more knowing, with the ponderous and novel idea that by such efforts they can put down the cause which the paper advocated. Such experiments were verily tried many times and oft, to put down the cause of liberty in this country. Antislavery printing offices were destroyed, lecturers mobbed, preachers shot and murdered for their advocacy of this cause, but the brutality and malice which prompted these acts was eventually defeated. Let the true character of spiritualism be what it may, such efforts to suppress it will but endear its teachings and doctrines to the hearts of those who are believers, and tend to increase their efforts for its promotion. Whatever is worthy of mobocracy may, in nine cases out of ten, be set down as good and correct—mobs seldom molest or interfere with evil influences. The demonstrations which attempted to put down spiritualism by the destruction of its organ at Cleveland will have the effect of stimulating, and increasing, and making more energetic the number of its friends.

Bro Gibson of the East Liverpool Record makes a good point in the following item:

Some editors just now are exhibiting rather queer symptoms, and we are at a loss to know what ails them. One fellow, we forget where he lives—imagines Grant is going to appoint all the "cat heads" in the country, and is frightened lest his turn may come suddenly. Perhaps the fellow has the stomach-ache, for that does derange the head. If so, he had better take a lick of salt; that is said to be good for worms.

An Irishman took off his coat to show a terrible wound which he had received a few days before. Not being able, however, to find the wound, he suddenly remembered that it was on his "brother Mike's arm."

DR. C. W. ROBACK,

Dear Sir:—Last fall my wife had the Liver Complaint so bad she was able to sit up but a few minutes at a time. I had a physician doctoring her for some time, but the medicine he gave her seemed to do her but little or no good. I was advised to get her a bottle of your Bitters, and let her try them, and see if they would help her. So I thought if one bottle would be good two would be better, and I got her two bottles, and when she had taken the last bottle she could do most of her house work. I got her one more which entirely cured her, and she looks the best I have seen her for four years. We recommended them to several of our neighbors who have used them with great success.

Lots For Sale.

THE beautiful tract of land known as the

FAIR GROUNDS,

on the bluff west of Main street, and north bank of the Tuscarawas river, together with adjoining lands has been divided into lots, which are recorded as the Riverside Addition to the town of Massillon.

The lots are of good size and will be sold at such easy terms of payment as to place a home within the reach of all. The beauty of the location is unsurpassed, and we believe it is conceded that such a location on the west bank of a running stream of water is always more healthy than one on the east bank.

It is apparent to all that the business and population of Massillon are very rapidly increasing, it is also apparent that public attention is directed to the west side of the river as the most desirable point for a home now in the market on that side will probably ever will be in the market again. We have therefore that it is safe to predict that in a very few years this ground will be

RIVERSIDE,

Will be covered over with dwelling houses, which will be occupied by a large proportion of the best citizens of the city of Massillon.

Every man who has a family or ever expects to have one ought to have a home in his own right, then he will be independent in his circumstances. A better opportunity will never again be offered of securing one so desirable, so cheap and so easily paid for.

Also a very desirable out lot, of about eight acres, adjoining Massillon on the Canton road, will divide well into three or four pasture lots. At some beautiful lots in the east part of the city.

The plots may be examined, and lots selected any time (292) P. G. ALBRIGHT.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Dr. J. C. Ayer, after long and careful study of the wants of the afflicted, has succeeded in producing from the pectoral medicines which contain the curative properties of all the remedies which have been found useful for the relief and cure of pulmonary complaints. Many of these remedies, when taken in the crude state in which they are found in the vegetable kingdom, are comparatively inert, and require to be combined with more active ingredients to develop their full power. Hence the necessity of so many cough remedies, which, however, are only palliatives, and, at best, can only afford temporary relief. Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is not a mere palliative, but a remedy which, by its power over the diseases of the throat and lungs, cures the most obstinate and dangerous colds, coughs, and incipient consumption, so surely that no case which is not beyond the reach of medicine should be considered hopeless. Even when other preparations entirely fail, the Cherry Pectoral will generally inspire hope and arrest the disease. Many of the most remarkable cures of pulmonary complaints that have astonished the world have been produced by the Cherry Pectoral. Its unparalleled success for the last twenty years has made it known throughout the civilized world. There is no community that has not been blessed with the cures it has made of the severest forms of Throat and Lung disease. Clergymen, Physicians, Statesmen, and people in all the walks of life, have come forward voluntarily to bear testimony to the wonderful results of this remedy. Why suffer from Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma, Hoarseness, Croup, or Consumption, when you can obtain relief by the use of Cherry Pectoral? Why permit your children to suffer from Whooping Cough, Croup, or Bronchitis, when Cherry Pectoral will cure them? Why let the aged suffer from Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Hoarseness, or Asthma, when Cherry Pectoral will give them instant relief? Why let Consumption fasten its fangs upon you, when Cherry Pectoral will cure you? Why let any one suffer from Throat or Lung disease, when Cherry Pectoral will cure them? Why suffer from Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, Headache, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Erysipelas, Scrofula, Ulcers, Tumors, Pimples, Blotches, Boils, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Ringworm, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Female Weakness, Irregularities, Suppressions, Sterility, Leucorrhœa, Uterine Diseases, Dropsy, Kidney Complaints, Gravel, Diabetes, Urinary Difficulties, Nervousness, Debility, Sleeplessness, Impotency, Loss of Vitality, Mercurial Diseases, Worms, Tape Worm, Piles, Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Bismuth, Zinc, Copper, Lead, Mercury, or any mineral substance whatever, it is perfectly harmless upon the most delicate patient. The cures it has effected in this and other lands are literally beyond account, and we believe without a parallel in the history of American medicine. Many of the most eminent members of the medical profession have voluntarily testified to the wonderful efficacy of the Cherry Pectoral in the most obstinate cases of Throat and Lung disease. Many of the most prominent clergymen in the country have written us that they have found in the Cherry Pectoral a remedy for the diseases of the throat and lungs which they had long sought for in vain.

For Liver Complaint, and for all those diseases of the Liver, it is the best remedy, stimulating the Liver into healthy action.

For Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy, where other medicines have failed. Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Practical and Analytical Chemists, Lowell, Mass., and sold by all druggists around the world.

The Grand Division of the Sons of Temperance of Ohio met at Salem, in semi-annual session, on last Wednesday, and continued until Thursday evening or Friday morning A considerable number of the leading members of the order, in this state, were present, among whom were G W P Burwell, and bro Horton, G S, of Cleveland, with others from different points. A large public meeting was held Wednesday evening in the M E church at which several speeches were made. The Grand Division of Pennsylvania was in session at the same time, and telegrams of encouraging words were exchanged. All present seemed to feel conscious that the cause is onward.

I O O F.—Monday, the 26th ult, was the semi-centennial anniversary of the introduction of Odd-Fellowship into this country. In many of the large cities the order observed the day with appropriate demonstrations, consisting of speeches, processions, and other indications of their respect for the day on which Thomas Wilder instituted the first lodge in America, at Baltimore Some of the order claim a membership of 300,000, and a vast amount of wealth, consisting of halls and other valuable property.

Our Coal Trade is a big thing let it be viewed in whatever light possible. Several mines are actively worked with large forces of men, who are daily exhuming and forwarding to market hundreds of tuns of this essential element of usefulness. Prominent among these banks is that known as the Willow Coal Comp. So extensive are its operations that it has a regularly organized board of officers, at the head of which are D P Rhodes, president, and J F Card, secretary and treasurer, both of Cleveland, and Mr W L King, resident superintendent. To facilitate the forwarding of coal the proprietors have constructed some two miles of new tramway from the interior of the mines to the railroad coal depot. Some 300 miners are employed; and heretofore they have found it necessary to use a very large number of horses and mules to convey their coal to the place of shipping. On Monday last the company received two new locomotives, built especially for their use, and with these they expect to use from 50 to 75 coal cars, and forward some 600 tons daily from the coal beds. That the products of this mine are appreciated, not only here but at many other places, is a fact familiar to every one caring to know. Some of the extensive establishments at Chicago, among which is the celebrated water works of that city, are worked by the heating power of Willow Bank coal. The vast beds of mineral connected with this mine give assurance that it can be worked an indefinite length of time, and while being developed it is a fund of wealth, not only to the proprietors, but adds to the numerous sources of revenue to our community a very large item in the way of prosperity.

Removed.—Mr H A Williams, who has for some weeks occupied the room over Mr Schaufele's jewelry store, has removed to his room in the Opera House, where our citizens can find, at all times, a full supply of wall paper, window curtains and other articles in his line of trade. No difficulty in finding the store.

The room occupied in the Opera House by S Koch & Co., as a clothing store and another by Mr Williams with wall paper, queensware, &c., make a very fine appearance when lighted up with gas. They are tastefully and finely finished: and when the entire six rooms are similarly illuminated by their occupants the vicinity will present a gorgeous aspect.

Hope our Canton brethren of the two R's wont take our innocent allusion to their mistakes in publishing the income returns to heart so much as to cry about it. We only took their own authority for what was said in all but one case, and that correction—resulting from a misunderstanding, no doubt, was furnished us by the man most interested.

Saturday night our efficient marshal had to be particularly active in interfering with sundry whisky rows and fights, which took place at some of our grogshops. Hell gate is represented as having been particularly lively, some of the customers knocking each other about quite roughly. If such demonstrations are indicative of our growth as a city, as some claim, then we are getting along.

The advent of May, here, was stormy, the first day being devoted, part of the time, to rain, at early intervals heavy, and Sunday was overcast with clouds, often quite leaky, mixed up with chilling winds. As the first was moving day in New York, the unfortunates who had to emigrate from house to home, if they had such a day as we experienced, must have suffered great inconvenience and no little loss.

The proposed distribution of an immense amount of property by the Youngstown Real Estate Association, which was to have taken place on the 28th ult. did not transpire, in consequence of the sale of an insufficient number of tickets. The managers had incurred considerable expense, which, we are informed they will promptly liquidate, if they have not already done so.

Man Killed.—On the 27th ult. a large body of coal, weighing about two tons, fell upon and crushed to death one of the miners at the Willow coal banks. Whether a man of family or not we are not informed, but it is a sad occurrance.

The Continentals gave one of their popular and excellent concerts at Madison Hall last Friday evening. Our citizens patronized them quite liberally, and seemed well satisfied with the entertainment. They gave their hearers excellent music all the way through, and the little episodes interspersed added much to the zest of the performances. All seemed especially pleased with the gentleman who sang base.

The cry of mad dog, whether right or wrong, always creates an unfavorable feeling among the humans towards the canines. We last week stated that a dog was killed under suspicions of hydrophobia. Since then one or more have shared the same fate. By those who claim to be posted on the question it is found a most rare case that dogs are guilty of this madness, but that like humans they are liable to fits of some kind, and that is supposed to have been the case with those recently slain in this vicinity. Although many people regard dogs as nuisances, yet it would be but a testimonial of our humanity to give even the mut beast a chance for his life; and if suspicion rests upon him, pen him up, or restrain him in some way so that in the worst contingency he may be deprived of doing harm.

We are under obligations to Hon J A Ambler for five volumes of the Congressional Globe—which contain an immense quantity of reading and statistical matter.

Mr Andrews the principal purchaser of the New Lisbon railroad, advertises for 20,000 ties, 500 laborers, and fifty teams. Already have active operations commenced on the unfinished portion, which extends northward to Niles, thus connecting with the A G W. The work is to be done in ninety days—much of the road is already graded. Mr A and his co-workers have also just taken a charter to extend the road east of New Lisbon to the Ohio River, at East Liverpool, which they design finishing at as early a date as possible. At that point it will connect with the Cleveland & Pittsburgh road

Death of T. A. Ricks. Last week in alluding to the critical condition of the subject of this notice the hope was expressed that his life would be spared, and that once more he might enjoy his wonted health and active usefulness. But that Power which holds the lives of individuals in His hands decreed otherwise, and about noon of last Wednesday, the spirit of our friend and fellow-citizen, left all that was mortal of him, and passed into another mode of existence. When the unwelcome news was first announced our entire community seemed to be wrapped in gloom at the loss which not only his near and dear relatives felt, but which every one seemed to realize as one of the sad days of their experience. His illness was not protracted—it was comparatively short, and he lives not to tell us of the nature of the sufferings endured. Mr. Ricks was regarded by all who had the pleasure of his acquaintance as a young man of much more than ordinary endowments—he gave evidence of this in many of the relations of life which he was called upon to occupy. When war for the union was waging, and the existence of our nation was jeopardized by the treason of rebel enemies, although but a youth in his minority he felt it his duty to volunteer, with many thousands more, and aid in achieving the victory which, ultimtaely crowned our arms in behalf of unity, liberty and equal rights. His service in the army continued three years, and in the varied posts of duty, which he was called upon to fill, as a soldier, he did so to the entire satisfaction of all with whom he came in contact. As a private citizen he was energetic and enterprising, and had life been spared him, success must have crowned his efforts; as a soldier he was patriotic, and faithful; and as a writer he wielded a facile pen, and leading papers sought his correspondence with more than ordinary avidity. On Friday the remains of Theodore A Ricks were taken to the cemetery, followed by a vast concourse of citizens, prominent among whom were his comrades in arms of Post 45, who turned out to a man to pay their last respects to the memory of one they all loved and cherished as a soldier. As a token of respect to his memory all the dry good stores were closed, and comparative quiet marked the hours for funeral ceremonies. Mr. Ricks was aged about 25 years.

TRIBUTE TO THE MEMORY OF
THEODORE A. RICKS.

Like a smitten pine, graceful and green,
And fresh with manhood's early bloom,
He fell;—and he, who yesterday,
Stood joyous, and a joy to all,
Lies cold and prostrate now in death.
The home his presence filled with bliss,
Is dark with gloom: sadness and tears
Are on each anxious face, that late
So gladly basked within the beams,
His radiant smiles around him shed.
Not as the aged oak, that sinks,
With gradual and sure decay,
But swift in manhood's early prime,
He bowed, e'en like the budding tree,
As when with unrelenting stroke
The axman lays his sharpened blade.

O, cruel fate! that one so young,—
So full of promise, and of hope,—
So graced with budding usefulness,
Should perish thus, e'en while the dew
That decks life's golden morn, is fresh,
And radiant in the rising sun.
But like the dew, he paled and passed,
Ere yet his life had reached its noon.

Farewell! thy comrades mourn thy loss,
Who, on the red and tented field,
Stood fearless by thy side, and braved,
With thee, the front and shock of war,
When vaunting treason, madly hurled
Its bolts, against the nation's life.
Upon the tented fields above,
Thy banner waves victorious now.
Resplendant round its golden staff,
Departed heroes, rallying, throng
To grasp thy hand, and welcome bid
To the grand army of the sky.
Now, with thy comrades gone, who on
The battle cloud to victory rose,
In heavenly chorus joined, goes up
The loud and ceaseless banner song
Of Freedom evermore!

'Tis past!
Earth's battles, all, are ended now;
But through the unfolding clouds above,
That vail our vision from the world
Beyond, canst thou not drop a smile,
To cheer our faint and faltering steps,
While yet in our unfinished fight
We struggle on? Canst thou not lend
Some ray, to light the cheerless path
Of her, who, like the ivy on
The oak, didst lean on thee, till thou
Wert most untimely stricken down?
O, say! from thine unseen abode,
Canst thou not whisper back some word
Of love? some consolation sweet?
That in her loneliness shall soothe
The throbbing heart with the sweet sense
That, though unseen, thou still art near,
And loving still, with purer love,
Than we, on earth, can ever know?
Come, then, and from the airy realm
That bounds our clouded sphere, speak words
Of hope to those who mourn thy loss,
And give assurance, glad and strong,
To cheer our dark and shadowy walk
Through death's mysterious vail, to where
Thy footsteps tread the shining paths,
Which, o'er the glittering fields of light,
Lead gently on to heaven, and God.

By their advertisement, which appears in to-day's paper, it will be seen that Messrs. McDonald & Bruce have on hand, and expect to keep a full assortment of groceries, such as are essential in every household, Their extensive variety of goods will enable them to supply any demand which our citizens may make upon them for anything needed in their line. Their eligible and well known stand is easily accessible to all requiring or desiring to purchase groceries—and there is not the annoyance of liquor and its evils about their premises—a consideration of no small import to purchasers.

I B Dangler is east, buying his stock of summer goods, and says, you better look a little out for to get big bargains when they come,

Come and see the new goods at I B Dangler's.

Several errors, some of them important ones, eluded correction, last week, in relation to the death of Theodore A Ricks. And in addition to this fact there was an unusual demand for the paper, which we could not possibly supply. Under these circumstances we republish the articles referred to with the proper corrections.

The fact was stated last week that Mr Hookway had just received a large stock of seasonable goods, consisting of clothing, and material out of which to manufacture it. His well filled shelves and loaded counters are such testimony as no one will dispute that Mr H is prepared to supply any demand in his line. Give him a call.

Mr Reed is about to leave here in order to go east for the purchase of a new stock of dry goods. He never fails to bring back the best material he can find in the market, and it is pretty certain he will do so again.

The election of officers of the M E Sabbath school, of this place, on Monday evening, resulted as follows: Male Supt., John B Wert; Ast Male Supt, J K Merwin; Female Supt, Mrs Sarah E Harsh; Ast Female Supt, Miss Amelia Buckius; Secretary and Treasurer, J L Ball; Librarian, I S Crooks. We are pleased to learn that the School is in a prosperous, condition, and now numbers in the neighborhood of three hundred members.

Mr. William Bucher, long a citizen of this place, now of Cleveland, is in town.

New goods just received at Esteps. Call and see his stock.

The new grocery establishment of Messrs. McDonald & Bruce, Main street, has just been graced with an elegant new sign.

Our readers will please examine the new Canton advertisement in to-day's paper. The young gentlemen, proprietors of the establishment, design keeping on hand a full line of dry goods, as their extended list fully indicates. As some of our people go to Canton to trade occasionally, we suggest that they call at this establishment, for it is certain they will be fairly dealt with. Recollect, their store is in Mathews' Block—firm Miller & Daughaday.

Pew Renting.—The pews of the Presbyterian church will be rented on Monday evening, May 10, at 7½ o'clock. Pew holders are respectfully requested to be present to avoid changes that might occur if not present. By order of the Trustees.

Washington Correspondence.

Washington, April 30, 1869

Gov McCormick, now delegate in congress from Arizona, had an interview with the secretary of war, and and presented a memorial of the legislature, requesting that the citizens of the territory be loaned arms and furnished rations whenever they can effectively co operate with the troops against the hostile Indians. The present governor, Goodwin, and Governor McCormick both expressed themselves, in a recent conversation with your correspondent, favorable to the policy of the frontier states and territories being entrusted with all the agency and all the fighting necessary, with the Indians; and their views are plausible. The frontier people are the most concerned.

It is reported that the president and secretary of interior are considering the expediency of detailing retired army officers, and those who are not assigned to any duty since the consolidation of the troops to act as Indian agents. That looks well, too, provided those officers must remain in the pay of the government. In that case it would be an economy in salaries, and an economy in a more faithful accounting of all moneys entrusted to agents; the military service having less liberty to indulge in cupidity than the civil service.

You have seen it reported, I presume, that it has been brought to light that an agent has been, and is now under pay, for the Delaware Indians, which as a tribe, has been extinct since April 10, 1867.

The new commissioner, Parker, is about to institute an investigation into the frauds practiced upon the Cherokee soldiers, by which they have been swindled out of their bounties, estimated in the aggregate at several hundred thousand dollars. Indian agents are said to be implicated.

It is not true that the house committee of foreign affairs have made arrangements to go, or are authorized to go, officially, to St. Domingo and other islands of the gulf. They are investigating the Paraguayan difficulties; and they say that the testimony when published, will furnish a record which, for unprovoked and flagrant violation of the immunities of embassadors, and for ferocity and cruelty, has had no parallel for centuries.

The department of education, under the supervision of Commissioner Barnard, is preparing a full report on education in the District of Columbia. That portion of the report which relates to education among the people of color is already in the hands of the public printer, and will soon be issued in a separate volume.

A national women's dress convention has just been held here two evenings. Many sensible things were said. Dr. Mary E. Walker presided, and made some remarks. Dr. Lydia Sarye Hasbrook was the principal speaker. Dr. Hasbrook's husband was present. Both husband and wife have been newspaper folks. The convention adjourned for one year. I will not attempt to indicate what was said.

It is astonishing that any convention should be needed to call attention to the undisputed evils of the female dress. Our American women are so generally broken in health, that it has become a national habit with us to turn our eyes across the water and sigh for the health of other nations. But we are mistaken in the supposed immunity of European women. I have paid some attention to the comparison. I had heard so much about the inferiority of the American women in this respect, that when I got abroad, perhaps stimulated by a little national pique, I thought I would try and see how much truth there was in it. From the testimony of physicians and from all sources of information, I became well convinced that the principal advantage the nations of western Europe possessed, lay with their lower classes of women who, by poverty and class distinctions, had always escaped slavery to fashion in dress. Functional difficulties and disease everywhere abound. We are deceived by their plumper physiques, and in less sunny climates than ours, by fairer complexions. But they beat us in having a vast majority of their women—the poor—prevented by their poverty and the rules of society from attempting to dress finely. With us, the poorer the women are, the harder they strive at it. J. Evans.

Concentrated Fluid Extract Sarsaparilla

ERADICATES ERUPTIVE and ULCERATIVE DISEASES OF THE

THROAT, NOSE, EYES, EYELIDS, SCALP, and SKIN,

Which so disfigure the appearance, PURGING the evil effects of mercury and removing all taints the remnants of diseases hereditary or otherwise as it is taken by adults and children with perfect SAFETY.

TWO TABLE-SPOONFULS of the extract of Sarsaparilla, added to a pint of water is equal to the Lisbon Diet Drink, and one bottle is equal to a gallon of the Syrup of Sarsaparilla, or the decoctions as usually made.

AN INTERESTING LETTER published in the Medico-Chirurgical Review, on the subject of the Extract of Sarsaparilla in certain affections by Benjamin Travers, F. R. S., &c. Speaking of these diseases, and diseases arising from the excess of mercury, he states that no remedy is equal to the Extract of Sarsaparilla; its power is extraordinary, more so than any other drug I am acquainted with. It is, in the strictest sense, a tonic with the specific addition. That it is applicable to a certain state of the system so undefined and yet so visible as to render other substances of the tonic class totally inadmissible or injurious.

Do not Trifle With Danger.

A single spark may kindle a flame that will consume a city, and small ailments, neglected, may end in fatal disorders. Bearing this fact in mind, let the first symptoms of debility or nervous irritation be met promptly by invigorating treatment. Foremost among the vegetable tonics of the age stands HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, and whenever the vital powers seem to languish, there is every reason to suspect that the animal functions essential to the natural and purification of the body are imperfectly performed, this invaluable invigorant and anti-septic should at once be resorted to. Indigestion always produces weakness of the bodily powers. Sometimes it happens that the appetite demands more food than the stomach can digest; though not more, perhaps, than is required to keep up the full strength of the frame. The object, under such circumstances, is to increase the digestive capacity of the assimilating organs, so as to make it equal to the duty imposed upon it by the appetite, and capable of supplying the building material of the system as fast as it is required. This object is fully accomplished by the use of the Bitters. They tone and gently stimulate the circular embranchment which secretes the gastric juice, and the result is that the solvent is mixed with the food in sufficient quantity to convert all its nourishing particles into pure and wholesome chyle. If, on the other hand, there is a deficiency of digestive power, the effect of the tonic is to stimulate and strengthen the digestive powers, and thus create a healthy appetite for food. In nineteen cases out of twenty, headache, nausea, nervousness, fainting-fits, pains and indeed, most of the casual ailments and pains to which humanity is subject, proceed primarily from indigestion complicated with biliousness; and for both these complaints HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS are recommended as a speedy and certain remedy. 305 7

HAVE HEARD OF

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS,

AND

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN TONIC,

Prepared by Dr. C. M. Jackson, Philadelphia. Their introduction into this country from Germany occurred in 1825.

THEY CURED YOUR

FATHERS AND MOTHERS,

And will cure you and your children. They are entirely different from the many preparations now called Bitters or Tonics. They are no tavern preparation, or anything like one; but good, honest, reliable medicines. They are

The greatest known remedies for

Liver Complaint,
DYSPEPSIA,
Nervous Debility,
JAUNDICE,
Diseases of the Kidneys,
ERUPTIONS OF THE SKIN,
and all Diseases arising from a Disordered Liver, Stomach, or

IMPURITY OF THE BLOOD.

Constipation, Flatulence, Inward Piles, Fullness of Blood to the Head, Acidity of the Stomach, Nausea, Heartburn, Disgust for Food, Fulness or Weight in the Stomach, Sour Eructations, Sinking or Fluttering at the Pit of the Stomach, Swimming of the Head, Hurried or Difficult Breathing, Fluttering at the Heart, Choking or Suffocating Sensations when in a Lying Posture, Dimness of Vision, Dots or Webs before the Sight, Dull Pain in the Head, Deficiency of Perspiration, Yellowness of the Skin and Eyes, Pain in the Side, Back, Chest, Limbs, etc., Sudden Flushes of Heat, Burning in the Flesh, Constant Imaginings of Evil and Great Depression of Spirits.

All these indicate disease of the Liver or Digestive Organs, combined with impure blood.

Hoofland's German Bitters

is entirely vegetable, and contains no liquor. It is a compound of Fluid Extracts. The Roots, Herbs, and Barks from which these extracts are made are gathered in Germany. All the medicinal virtues are extracted from them by a scientific chemist. These extracts are then forwarded to this country to be used expressly for the manufacture of these Bitters. There is no alcoholic substance of any kind used in compounding the Bitters, hence it is the only Bitters that can be used in cases where alcoholic stimulants are not advisable.

Hoofland's German Tonic

is a combination of all the ingredients of the Bitters, with pure Santa Cruz Rum, Orange, etc. It is used for the same diseases as the Bitters, in cases where some pure alcoholic stimulus is required. You will bear in mind that these remedies are entirely different from any others advertised, for the cure of the diseases named, these being scientific preparations of medicinal extracts, while the others are mere decoctions of rum in some form. The TONIC is decidedly one of the most pleasant and agreeable remedies ever offered to the public. Its taste is exquisite. It is a pleasure to take it, while its life-giving, exhilarating, and medicinal qualities have caused it to be known as the greatest of all tonics.

DEBILITY,

There is no medicine equal to Hoofland's German Bitters or Tonic in cases of Debility. They impart a tone and vigor to the whole system, strengthen the appetite, cause an enjoyment of the food, enable the stomach to digest it, purify the blood, give a good, sound, healthy complexion, eradicate the yellow tinge from the eye, impart a bloom to the cheeks, and change the patient from a short-breathed, emaciated, weak, and nervous invalid, to a fully-developed, stout, and vigorous person.

Weak and Delicate Children are made strong by using the Bitters or Tonic. In fact, they are Family Medicines. They can be administered with perfect safety to a child three months old, the most delicate female, or a man of ninety.

These Remedies are the best

Blood Purifiers

ever known, and will cure all diseases resulting from bad blood. Keep your blood pure; keep your Liver in order; keep your digestive organs in a sound, healthy condition, by the use of these remedies, and no disease will ever assail you. The best men in the country recommend them. If years of honest reputation go for anything you must try these preparations.

FROM HON. GEO. W. WOODWARD,

Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.
PHILADELPHIA, March 16, 1867.

I find "Hoofland's German Bitters" is not an intoxicating beverage, but is a good tonic, useful in disorders of the digestive organs, and of great benefit in cases of debility and want of nervous action, in the system.

Yours truly,
GEO. W. WOODWARD.

FROM HON. JAMES THOMPSON,

Judge of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.
PHILADELPHIA, April 28, 1856.

I consider "Hoofland's German Bitters" a valuable medicine in case of attacks of Indigestion or Dyspepsia. I can certify this from my experience of it. Yours, with respect,
JAMES THOMPSON.

FROM REV. JOSEPH H. KENNARD, D. D.,

Pastor of the Tenth Baptist Church, Philadelphia.

Dr. JACKSON—DEAR SIR—I have been frequently requested to connect my name with recommendations of different kinds of medicines, but regarding the practice as out of my appropriate sphere, I have in all cases declined; but with a clear proof in various instances, and particularly in my own family, of the usefulness of Dr. Hoofland's German Bitters, I am for once from my usual course, to express my full conviction that for general debility of the system and especially for Liver Complaint, it is a safe and valuable preparation. In some cases it may fail; but usually, I doubt not, it will be very beneficial to those who suffer from the above causes.

Yours, very respectfully,
J. H. KENNARD,
Eighth, below Coates street.

The Drunkard's Wife.

Dark is the night—how dark! no light! no fire!
Cold is the hearth, the last faint sparks expire;
Shivering she watches by the cradle side
For him who pledged her love—last year a bride!

Hark, 'tis his footstep, no, 'tis past, 'tis gone,
Tick, tick! how wearily the time crawls on,
Why should he leave me thus? he once was kind,
And I believed 'twould last—How mad! how blind!

Rest then my babe—rest on—'tis hungers cry,
Sleep for there is no food—the fount is dry—
Famine and cold their marring work have done,
My heart must break—and then—the clock strikes one.

Yet I'll not curse him, no, 'tis all in vain,
'Tis long to wait—but sure he'll come again!
And I could starve and bless him, but for you
My child—his child—Oh friend! The clock strikes two.

Can he desert us thus?—he knows I stay
Night after night, in loneliness, to pray
For his return—and yet he shed no tear,
No, no, it cannot be! he will be here.

Nestle more closely, dear one, to my heart!
Thou'rt cold! thou'rt freezing! but we will not part.
Husband, I die—Father, it is not he!
Oh, God, protect my child! The clock strikes three.

They're gone! they're gone! the glimmering spark has fled,
The wife and child are numbered with the dead;
On the cold hearth, outstretched in solemn rest,
The babe lay frozen on its mother's breast—
The drunkard came at last—but all was o'er—
Dread silence reigned around—the clock struck four.

How to Advertise.

The following conversation occurred between the editor of this paper and H T Helmbold, druggists, 594 Broadway.

Ed—Doctor, I understand that you advertise in more than two thousand newspapers.

Dr—Yes, sir. Of the four thousand papers published in the United States, I advertise in two thousand seven hundred.

Ed—It is really astonishing, doctor, how you can make it pay, and how you manage to keep account of them all, keeping your advertisements in the positions agreed upon, make the necessary changes, etc.

Dr—Well, sir, I will explain the matter, and enter into a few details which may interest you. Some 18 years ago I had a small drug store in the city of Philadelphia, and at that time manufactured my fluid extracts. They had but a limited sale, and it required considerable effort to bring them to the notice of physicians. I was tolerably successful ultimately, and they were very generally prescribed by medical practitioners. At this time the extracts were sold in bulk—by the pound—as paregoric, syrup of squills, and other compounds are sold. My business increased in this way, but the protection afforded me was slight. A druggist, receiving a physician's prescription for my article, for instance, would, in many cases, substitute that of his own manufacture, thereby causing difficulty between the practitioner and myself. My interest became so completely jeopardized that I concluded either not to sell to dealers in bulk, notify physicians of my determination, and be satisfied to remain an obscure druggists in the upper part of a large city, or adopt some entirely different method. my mind was considerably exercised as to what plan to adopt. I was aware of the singular prejudice existing in the minds of practitioners and high-toned druggist, against advertised remedies; and, in truth, I then had but limited means at my command to experiment in printer's ink, when, one bright morning, while I was sitting in my store waiting for customers, the Rev Mr Quinn, of Philadelphia, happened in, and said: Doctor, you have a nice little store, and seem to be doing a nice little business; to which I remarked in the affirmative. He then remarked, Doctor, I think this is a business which would suit me. I presume I could employ a competent druggist, devote some of my spare time to looking after the business, and thus make it pay. What do you think? The idea at once flashed across my mind to sell out, and I said I did not suppose he would have any difficulty in carrying out his proposition. He then inquired the amount I would sell out for, whereupon I named a sum, and he accepted the offer. The negotiation was no sooner concluded than I began to look about for a new place, and with a few hundred dollars of my cash capital, was not long in finding a small office, at 810 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, which I rented, opened, and made ready for business in a few days. Advertising was to me a new and untried field; but with the small capital left I determined to know—and that quickly—its merits and value; for even at that early date I was no hand to loiter, and I concluded to know in a month. I manufactured a small stock and expended all my surplus cash—amounting to about $2,000—in that short period. My experimental programme worked admirably, and from that time I continued to succeed, and increased my advertising in a corresponding proportion. On these principles I have managed to enlarge and expand my business, until it has assumed its present magnitude.

Ed—But, doctor, how do you manage about the making of contracts, the payments to publishers, etc?

Dr—Oh! that is a simple matter. When I have funds to spare I invest the money in extending my name and business, just as a man does who purchases real estate or cultivates a farm; and I consider the investment a good one in every respect. Nor do I ever attempt to make contracts without the means to make payments; any more than a good farmer would think of cultivating his soil without the funds to pay for cultivation.

Ed—But, doctor, you have not yet exactly answered my question; what I wish to know more particularly is, how you know what profits are derived from the different sources.

Dr—Well, these are questions frequently asked of me in my place of business, on the street, or wherever I may happen to be. It is one of the first questions asked by business men, and moreover, I seldom open my daily correspondence without finding two or three letters relative to the same subject, some going so far as to ask my views of the value, as advertising mediums, of the different papers I patronize. These writers always receive civil replies. But while we are on this theme, Mr Editor, permit me to relate a little incident that occurred to me, and which I frequently relate to those with whom I am familiarly acquainted. It happened about fifteen years ago, while I was yet young in the business. To commence: I chanced to be in the city of Washington on my way south, and, as usual, was desirous of progressing on my journey as rapidly as possible. It was about five p m when I arrived. I did not wait until after dinner; I wanted to know the proprietor of the leading paper in the capital, and to make a contract for advertising; so to him I straightway proceded. He was out riding, I was informed, and would not return to his office again that day. I inquired for his residence, and, this ascertained, I determined to see him that night, as I desired to leave early on the morning of the following day. Dinner being over, I started out in search of Mr Wallach. Now, Mr Editor, I presume you are acquainted with the said Mr Wallach, of the Washington Evening Star. If you are not, permit me to say that he is a gentleman well worthy of your acquaintance: but to the interview. Finding Mr Wallach at home, I presented my card, and related my business. His reply was polite, but pungent, and to the point, in something like these words:—This is not my office, sir; I can be found there from 10 a m to 3 p m, and my clerks attend to advertising. But, Mr Wallach, I remonstrated, that is all very well, but I want to know you. I wish to leave in the early morning train, and I know you will accommodate me. Well, what do you want, sir, in the way of advertising? I showed him my space, for which he immediately named a price, and which I accepted as quickly. After closing the bargain, he remarked, If you had left this over until morning, you could have had it for one-half the sum—yes, probably for less than half, if you had fought hard. If that is the case, probably I had better pay half yearly, in advance? He guessed that it was a good idea, and I paid for the whole six months in advance; but, remember, I knew Mr Wallach.

Ed—Doctor, do you mean to state that you pursue this liberal course with all the papers in which you advertise, and are you acquainted with the publishers of twenty-seven hundred newspapers?

Dr—With the proprietors of all the leading papers, and the majority of the others, I enjoy a personal acquaintance, and to such papers as the New York Herald, Weekly Tribune, and Independent, I have sometimes paid from fifteen hundred to three thousand dollars for a single insertion of an advertisement, knowing that in such cases the amount of space occupied, and the importance of the transaction, would necessitate an interview. On one occasion I offered the sum of five thousand dollars for a page in the New Yord Herald The offer was accepted, but afterward declined, on account of press of matter, notwithstanding it was double the usual advertising rates. This was at the time of the fall of Richmond. To conclude, I always prefer dealing directly with publishers; friendly relations once established, I have no fear of accepting their best rates.

Ed—Well, doctor, I guess I shall have to follow your advice, and see Mr Wallach. I am pleased with the interview, and whenever inquiries are made regarding the value of the Independent, as an advertising medium, you must freely give the result of your experience with that paper.

Dr—This I promise to do with great pleasure.

P S—Editor proceeds to his sanctum, puts in print the entire conversation, and fearing that the doctor may take umbrage at his action, takes the precaution to mail him a marked paper.—Home Journal.

The Lakes of Nevada.

Nevada has seven lakes of considerable size. Lake Tahoe, in the Sierra Nevada mountains is 6,000 feet above the level of the sea. It lies about equally in Nevada and California, is remarkably cool and clear, and is celebrated for the abundance and excellence of its fish, trout weighing 20 or 30 pounds being often caught in it. The scenery is beautiful and it is a great summer resort. The lake is 20 miles long by 10½ in width.

Washoe lake, in Washoe valley, is but 6 or 8 miles in length and 3 or 4 in width. The waters are alkaline.

Pyramid lake is 30 miles in length and 10 to 12 in width and is 4,000 feet above the sea. It is in Humboldt Co. A rock rises 600 feet above the surface in the form of a pyramid, and gives the name to the lake. It abounds in fine trout.

Walker lake, in Esmaralda county, is an irregular sheet of water 25 miles long and from 6 to 10 miles wide. It has an elevation of 4,200 feet and is well stocked with fish.

Carson lake in Churchill county, is oval shaped and about 10 miles in diameter. The water is very salt.

Humboldt lake is in Humbold county, is 25 miles long by 10 wide. The water is very impure with alkali and salt.

The sink of Carson and Humboldt rivers is a long shallow sheet of very blackish water, extending greatly in every direction during the rainy season, and contracting very much in summer.

Extravagances in Male Attire.

We called at a large importing house in Broadway, not long ago, which announces itself as dealing solely in men's underwear, and amazing were our discoveries. We came suddenly upon a large room, which we at first mistook for a parterre of trophical flowers in full bloom, but which, on examination proved to be the sample room for men's neckties. Such patterns and such styles, and such colors, we had never imagined to be possible in neckties—especially colors. There was one collection of such flaming, glowing, blazing, burning red, that we involuntarily asked the proprietor if the insurance companies didn't rate them as extra hazardous on account of fire. We hardly felt safe, and longed for a fire engine to come and play on those neckties, and put them out.

The prices of some of the specimens of men's under clothing which we saw in that vast establishment ran up to a frightful figure, especially those of the wedding gear. We will set down a list of some of the articles, at what we were told were the usual retail prices for them in Broadway shops:

1 pair	wedding socks	$15
1 "	" drawers,	30
1 "	" suspenders,	25
1	" shirt,	75
1	" under shirt,	35
1	" necktie,	25
1	wedding pocket handkerchief,	150
	Total wedding under wear	$355

We were told that the price of men's fancy handkerchiefs, like that of fancy horses, is limited by nothing but fancy. A handkerchief can be made as costly, by the use of fine lace and embroidery, as the folly of snobs may desire.

Why a man should desire to wear gorgeous suspenders at his wedding is difficult to imagine, unless it be that he may have the felicity of hanging them over a chair at night, for the purpose of dazzling the eyes and exciting the admiration of his intellectual bride. The rest of the extravagant under wear is doubtless put on that the bridegroom may show to advantage in a bridal chamber war dance, or fandango, or other exhilarating gymnastics, preliminary to his settling down to the sober realities of domestic life.

In addition to this absurd extravagance for men's under wear, there is much more of a similarly wasteful sort. There are meerschaums, and tobacco, and jewelry, and beverages, and over wear, and canes, and card cases, and all manner of follies, which entail domestic disquietudes, and leads to home discomforts, which it is vain to expect that servant men or servant girls can remedy.—Oliver Dyer, in Packards Monthly.

A Decided J. P.

A racy Cincinnati correspondent of the Hamilton, (O.) True Telegraph, relates the following of a certain Squire Sedam, a life magistrate of Storrs township, Hamilton county:

"The law of the sturdy old Squire was as irrevocable as that of the Medes and Persians; there was no appeal taken from his court, for this modern Lycurgus sturdily averred that he wouldn't stand any such d—n nonsense, and, no matter how many books a pettifogger would pile up before him, and how many authorities he might quote, no matter how many writs of fire and ashes (scire facias) he might threaten the justice with, even going so far as threatening to carry him before Judge Warren on a "sashorari," the ancient luminary would smile blandly and say, "argy on that pint as long as you're a mind to, young man, but its no use a talkin' for I tell you,' bringing his fist emphatically down on the judicial desk, "this court never squashes any writs that it gits up itself!" Whenever he pronounced sentence of banishment to the barren hills of Kentucky, opposite, he had a steamboat yawl with two sturdy rowers, to execute the court by landing the culprit on the opposite shore, almost a quick as you could say Jack Robinson. This modern Lycurgus evidently construed the old time penalty, being sent to Coventry, simply to mean a sentence to Coventry, Kentucky. In no instance where sentence was passed, and to sentence was to execute, was the culprit ever known to show his face under the Justice's jurisdiction, during the term of his jurisdiction."

Life in Nebraska.

A citizen of Nebraska thus posts up an eastern correspondent, who speered at him a variety of questions as to the territory and life there:

What kind of a country do you live in?

Mixed and extensive. It is made up principally of land and water.

What kind of weather?

Long spells of weather are frequent. Our sunshine comes off principaly in the day time.

Have you plenty of water, and how do you get it?

A good deal of water scattered about, and generally got in pails and whisky.

Is it hard?

Rather so, when you have got to go half a mile and wade in the mud up to your knees to get it.

What kind of buildings?

Allegoric, Ionic, anti-Caloric, log, and slabs. The buildings are cheifly out of doors, and so low between joints that the chimneys all stick out through the roof.

What kind of society?

Good, bad, hateful, indifferent, and mixed.

Any aristocracy?

Nary one.

What do people do for a living, mostly?

Some work, some laze around, one is a shrewd business manager, and several drink whisky.

Is it cheap living there?

Only five cents a glass, and the water thrown in.

Any taste for music?

Strong. Buzz and buck saws in the day time, and wolf-howling and cat-fighting at night.

Any pianos there?

No, but we have several cow bells and a tin pan in every family.

What could a genteel family in moderate circumstances do for a living?

Work, shave notes, fish, hunt, steal, or, if pinched, buy and sell town property.

Words for boys to remember—Liberty is the right to do whatever you wish without interfering with the rights of others.

Save your money, and you will find it one of the most useful friends.

Never give trouble to your father or mother.

Take care of your pennies and they will grow to be dollars.

Intemperance is the cause of nearly all the trouble in this world; beware of strong drink.

TRANSCONTINENTAL R W FARE.—The present charges on the Pacific road are at the rate of five cents per mile on the Union and 10 cents per mile gold on the Central. At these figures and reducing the charges through to field rates, calculating greenbacks at 75 cents on the dollar, we get the following approximate estimate of the cost of a first-class through ticket:

	Miles.	Fares.
New York to Chicago,	960	$18 75
Chicago to Omaha,	466	17 53
Omaha to Salt Lake,	1,070	40 13
Salt Lake to San Francisco,	675	77 50
Totals.	3,299	$453 91

In the statement of distances, six miles should be added for ferriage from Oakland to San Francisco, making a total of 3,305 miles.

Ireland drinks less whisky than Scotland, though her population is twice as large. The late Budget shows that while the latter country drank, in 1868, 4,907,701 gallons. Ireland drank but 4,773,702 gallons. England at the same time consuming more than both together—over eleven millions of gallons.

At Lynn Massachustts, a school teacher asked a little girl who the first man was. She answered that she did not know. The question was put to the next, an Irish child, who answered loudly, Adam, sir, with apparent satisfaction. Law, said the first scholar, you needn't feel so proud about it; he wasn't an Irishman.

A witness in a late divorce suit kept saying that his wife had a retaliating disposition—that she retaliated for every little thing.

Did you ever see her husband kiss her? asked the wife's counsel.

Yes, sir, often.

Well, what did she do on such occasions?

She always retaliated, sir.

A Weathersfield paper says there are more deacons in that town than in any other town in Connecticut. The other day a well known deacon went to the steamboat wharf to see a friend off, and as the boat started the freind said, Good bye, deacon, whereupon twelve men, who stood upon the wharf, immediately tipped their hats and responded, Good bye, sir.

Charity is the vibration of the heart, which may be heard and felt, but never should be seen.

Mr Green sued a lady for breach of promise. Her friends offered to settle it for two hundred dollars. What! cried Green, two hundred dollars for ruined hopes a shattered mind, a blasted life and a bleeding heart! Two hundred dollars for all this! Never! never! Make it three hundred and its a bargain! This proves that Green never used the Zingari Bitters. Any one using the Zingari will be free from all bodily disease, a healthy and well balanced mind must follow.
